The Silver and Tariff Bills Still Being Considered.

Congressional Proceedings.

By Associated Press.] WASHINGTON, June 13.—The House went into Committee of the Whole on the sundry civil service bill.

The Senate resolution appointing Edward K. Valentine Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate was agreed to.

The House Committee on Commerce ordered a favorable report on the bill for a fog signal and light house at Gray's harbor, Washington.

SENATE.

The Senate silver bill was taken up and Morgan resumed the floor, but it was suggested that the time of Senators in discussing the amendments after the close of the general discussion should be extended from five minutes to ten or fifteen.

Jones of Nevada, in charge of the bill, thought it might be better, as several Senators still desired to speak on the subject, to extend the time for general debate until 3 o'clock on Monday, and he asked unanimous consent for that proposition.

Teller suggested that Morgan go on with his speech, and said he had no desire to cut off any Senator who might wish to address the Senate on the bill, and when the time came the limitation, he had no doubt, would be extended.

Morgan therefore went on with his remarks.

The House Committee on Reform in the Civil Service, which conducted an investigation into the charges against the Civil Service Commission, held a meeting to-day and agreed upon a report. The committee says: "We find, first, that Commissioners Roosevelt and Thompson discharged their duties with entire fidelity and integrity. Second, that the official conduct of Commissioner Lyman has been characterized by a laxity of discipline in the administration of the affairs of the commission, and he is therefore censurable. Your committee will at once investigate the workings of the system and present a subsequent report when the investigation is completed."

At the close of general debate on the silver bill it was postponed until Monday at 3 o'clock. The House bill as amended by the Finance Committee was substituted for the Senate bill.

The work by the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee on the tariff bill is drawing to a close. A completed schedule of the bill, except tobacco and sugar, has been given to the minority, and Carlisle is now engaged in the preparation of the report of the minority, to accompany the presentation of the bill to the Senate.

A Railroad Accident.

CLEVELAND, (O.), June 13.—A passenger train on the C. O. Valley Railroad was run into this morning by a switch engine at Newburg, a suburb two miles from here, and six men were killed and twelve wounded.

Later reports say that nobody was killed, but that twelve or thirteen were injured, some seriously. A freight train plowed through a passenger train at a crossing.

The accident was caused by a misunderstanding as to the signals. The engineers of both trains thought the signal was set for them to go ahead, and the result was the passenger train got part way over the crossing, when the freight train dashed into it, wrecking one car. It was almost miraculous that no lives were lost. It is not believed that any of the wounded will die.

A Compromise Effected.

COLUMBUS, June 13.—The striking car men have accepted the proposition of the Consolidated Company made last night, and will return to work at a compromise scale of $1.70 for the conductors and $1.60 for the drivers. Preparations are making to move the cars.

A Tour of the World.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

WALKING SWILL BARREL.

How a Battle Mountain Peeping Tom Was Caught Out.

The Central Nevada says: A certain individual of this town has been in the habit of late of going to the back doors of residences and opening the door, and often entering the house, if his progress was not stopped by some of the inmates, as far as the bed rooms. Peeping Tom, like the party referred to, has been driven from one in peevishness several times. The family finally put up a job on the peeper and placed a bucket of sour slops immediately over the door on the inside so that when the door opened the contents would fall all over the rascal. It worked to a charm. Just about 9 o'clock the hombr arrived, and seeing no light, opened the door and received the contents of the bucket.

Several of us were watching, and when last seen Mrs. Morgau's pigs were running him around, taking him for a walking swill barrel.

HUMBOLDT NEWS ITEMS.

Some Cattle, but Few Calves—The Mines—Oregon Horses.

The Silver State says: N. H. A. Mason arrived from Malheur, Or., by way of White Horse and King's river Wednesday. He says there a good many cattle left yet, but there are very few calves this spring. Mr. Mason is having a band of 800 horses driven down here from Oregon. They will arrive at Mill City about the 17th inst., and if not sold, will be driven to Kern county, Cal.

A. D. Wilcox, S. W. Ruse and L. F. Dunn left this morning for Central District to look at the mines. The district is coming to the front, the Astor and Locomotive being paying mines, and the Millionaire, owned by S. W. Ruse, it is believed, will shortly be on the paying list.

Killed by a Dynamo.

A St. Helena, Cal., dispatch of the 12th inst. says: Last evening an accident occurred at the electric light works which resulted in the death of Superintendent Lawrence Dickworth. He was in the dynamo room trying to adjust a short belt between the arc dynamo and exciter, when the belt flew off, knocked him down and throwing him against a dynamo, where he was knocked senseless. He died at 4:30 this afternoon.

Somebody Tells Somebody.

Dr. B. Hamilton, of Lemore, Cal., says a dozen bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which he sold there created such a demand for the remedy that he could not well do without it. Those who use it find it so much superior to any other remedy they have ever tried that they recommend it to their friends, and that is what makes it so popular. For sale by Suemakers & Co.

A stone culvert on the Chesapeake & Ohio was washed out, and while the storm was at its height, a freight train ran into the washout, causing a fearful wreck. Engineer C. C. Roadcap, Fireman Morris Honaker and brakeman Charles Eaton were buried beneath the wreck and their bodies could not be found.

Able and True.

Congressman Bartine made great speech on the silver question last Saturday, eliciting applause and congratulations from his hearers. In opening he modestly said:

Mr. Speaker, if I were to consult merely my personal feelings I should take no part in the discussion of this bill. I am a member of the House and I feel all the diffidence which it is said to be in good form for a new member to feel. But the subject which it covers is of infinite importance to the people whom I represent, one of the decisions of which may cast either shadow or sunshine over every household in the State of Nevada. Therefore I feel it my duty to present my views upon it with some degree of fullness, and to that end I ask the kindly indulgence and attention of the House.

It is a long speech and the GAZETTE cannot reproduce it entire, but it contains many telling points and is a valuable addition to the literature of the subject. Many of its sentences are worthy to rank with maxims and adages. We copy a few, and recommend our readers to send for the speech.

The way to restore silver is to restore it. The true remedy is remonetization in the complete sense, and the nearer we get to absolute free coinage the better, I believe, it will be for the country, and the better the people will be pleased with our work.

My own opinions are of the pronounced and radical character. Such study as I have been able to bestow upon the subject has convinced me that the double standard, comprising both gold and silver, is in every way superior to a standard consisting of either one alone. I believe that the United States can establish bimetalism, and by simply decreasing free coinage maintain the two metals at a fixed ratio as long as such law is upheld.

The phenomena of the last few years, the constant shrinkage in prices, the general and widespread complaints of unfavorable business conditions, are precisely what we would naturally expect to result from the demonetization of silver.

But, sir, the aim of all civilized governments is to promote the welfare of the people. Therefore, no matter what nation began it, or how many were engaged in it, if it appear that it has worked a great wrong to our people, it is the duty of the American Government to come to their relief and use every means in its power to undo that wrong.

The care suggestion, though, of free coinage provokes a storm of indignant protest, and the friends of such a measure are accused of every conceivable financial heresy. It is claimed that it would make the United States a dumping-ground for all the cheap silver of the world, and that under the operation of the Gresham law the gold would be driven out and soon place us upon a silver basis alone. Just such a prediction was made when the present silver coinage law went into force, and yet, notwithstanding the coinage of three hundred and fifty million standard dollars, we have acquired more gold than any other nation on the face of the earth.

We who live in the wilds of the far West buy the iron and steel of Pennsylvania, cotton and woolen goods of Massachusetts, clocks and wooden nutmegs of Connecticut, and all the highly protected products of the Empire State. In every political campaign we march shoulder to shoulder with you in the great battle for protection to America. I have no doubt when we ask you to do justice to our silver—a product upon which our very existence depends—you shrink from us as if we were unclean things, and accuse us of trying to swindle you with a 72-cent dollar. A 72-cent dollar! In the name of God, I would ask, who made it a 72-cent dollar? Did we? Does not our silver cost us just as much as gold and tell us as much? Is it not as bright and pure and beautiful as when Abraham paid his shekels for the field of Machpelah? Do we propose to put less of it into our splendid coins? Was it worth more than your boasted gold dollar up to the very day when it was "clipped" by unfriendly legislation? If our standard dollar is a dishonest coin, then every other silver coin in the world is likewise dishonest, and every nation that strikes a silver coin is a dishonest nation.

But, Mr. Speaker, I take a much broader view of the question than can be obtained from a consideration of the local interests of Nevada. Nearly the whole of my manhood life has been spent within the borders of this State. The aroma of her sage brush plains, and the breezes that sweep from the snowy heights of her mountains have been my inspiration ever since I emerged from boyhood. There I have carved out my fortune (in an exceedingly small way), there I have been honored far beyond my deserts, there I have found the dearest friendship of my life. But I love the whole Union far more than I love any one State, and if I believed for a moment that the remonetization of silver would injure the country as a whole, rather than advocate it I would break those endearing ties and begin life anew in the midst of other scenes.

Now, sir, I have said that the bill under consideration does not meet with my approval. I believe that the solution of this problem requires complete, absolute and unqualified free coinage.

My great objection to the bill is the so-called "bullion redemption clause." With this provision eliminated, and all opportunity for speculation removed, I believe that within a reasonable time silver would rise to its former bar value, and the free coinage clause would have its effect.

But under any circumstances my duty is clear. No measure can command my support as against free coinage.

THE Silver State of the 12th Inst. contains another half column of editorial gripings on Congressman Bartine.

THE Salt Lake Tribune says: So possibly David B. Hill, Governor of the Empire City, will come this way next month. Should he come it will be with the understanding on the part of Democrats and Republicans alike, that he is the most probable candidate for President on the Democratic ticket for 1892. Mr. Cleveland had the call up to a few weeks ago, but the discussion of the silver bill has greatly injured his chances. His party associates see more clearly now than ever before, how vast a mistake they made in not demanding unlimited silver coinage in their last platform, and with a feeling of resentment call to mind that it was Mr. Cleveland who defeated that plank. Governor Hill is on the up grade.

A JAPANESE is in custody charged with a similar offense to that so common among Chinese masters of female slaves. The Bulletin says that any one familiar with Japanese social customs knows that they are at variance with civilization, and that it may yet become necessary to take decided steps to restrict Japanese as well as Chinese immigration on account of its character.

A GOVERNMENT expedition is about to explore the Olympic range of mountains and the included country lying south of the Straits of Fuca, in Washington State. It is a little remarkable that this region, within fifty to one hundred miles of frequented waters and towns settled for several decades, should remain more unknown than Central Africa.

THE Austrian Premier declares that Austria and England are in full accord on the Eastern question, which is merely restating a familiar fact. That is what has kept the Turk in Europe for the last century. Russia at Constantinople would menace England's Suez route to India and Austria's back door at the "Iron Gates" of the Danube.

For its vigorous and persistent attacks on the "Contracting Ring," which is systematically robbing the taxpayers of San Francisco, the "Examiner" is entitled to the good will of that entire community.

ANECDOTES OF BONNER.

His Novel and Reliable Way of Capturing Wary Advertisers.

I met William Wyse yesterday while he was in a reminiscent mood, and he told me about his connection with Robert Bonner, which must have been thirty years ago. Bonner was then publishing a struggling paper known as the Merchants' Ledger, in which he published weekly such special information about State banks and counterfeit wildcat currency as was valuable to country merchants. Bonner set most of the type himself, and he was a very rapid typewriter. He won the prize in a contest with the reputed fastest typewriter of his day.

Wyse was engaged to solicit subscribers and advertising. He would get merchants to let him have their advertisements put into type to see how the matter would look in print. Bonner would set up the ads, and with a proof in his pocket Wyse rarely failed to get an order. He always insisted on a written order, on a blank form which he carried with him. "Mr. Bonner used to carry these advertising orders in his pants pocket," said Mr. Wyse. "Sometimes he had so many that they bulged out like a small boy's pocket. But we had no safe, and Bonner would not risk losing any of them by leaving them in an insecure place. I remember once getting an order for an advertisement of a jeweler at $600 a year. Mr. Bonner washed his hands and wiped them with a piece of brown paper before he inspected it. I have seen him wipe his face on brown paper many a time. We had no towel, but after he saw this order he thought we could afford to get a towel."

One of the peculiarities of Mr. Bonner, even at this early period, was the same dignified and consistent morality he has maintained through life. "I had an arrangement with him," said Mr. Wyse, "by which I solicited advertising for other papers and divided the commission with him. One of these was a Sunday morning paper, but Mr. Bonner would never take his share of that commission. He said I could do as I liked, but he would earn no money on Sunday. "He never wrote a line of matter on Sunday, or did any work on that day. He did not smoke or drink or gamble, and you know he has never allowed one of his famous horses to trot for money. Once while I was with him he told me he would like to sell half of his paper for $3,500 in order to pay off a mortgage on a house he had bought. He offered the interest to me, and I could have got the money by going to my father for it. But I did not take the trouble to do it. Half of the paper would be a fortune in itself."—N. Y. Press.

A Collection of Clovers. James L. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia, has a curious collection of clovers from different States. The clovers are mounted upon a card so as to represent a four-leaved clover. One leaf is made up of eleven four-leaved clovers, another of nine five-leaved clovers, another of nine six-leaved clovers, and the fourth of six nine-leaved clovers. The stem is represented by a series of clovers containing cup or funnel leaves and at the very end is one clover having nine leaves and a cup and another clover having thirteen leaves.

Malaria

It is believed to be caused by poisonous miasms arising from low, marshy land or from decaying vegetable matter, and which, breathed into the lungs, enter and poison the blood. If a healthy condition of the blood is maintained by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, one is much less liable to malaria, and Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many severe cases of this distressing affection.

Wherever Malaria Exists.

The Bilious are its certain prey. In intermittent and remittent fever, dumb ague and acute, the liver is always seriously affected, and the blood contaminated with bile. One of the chief reasons why Hostetter's Stomach Remedy is such a sure defense against chills and fever, and every form of malarial disease, is that it does away with biliousness to the disease, by reforming irregularity of the biliary organs in advance of the arrival of the season when the disease is prevalent. There is no finer fortifying preparation for those about visiting or emigrating to a locality where the malarial taint exists. There is no certain immunity from disease in an endemic or epidemic form, to be secured by the use of the average tonics and anti-spa-modics. But where quinine fails the bitters succeeds both in preventing and curing. Moreover, it removes every vestige of dyspepsia, and overcomes constipation, rheumatism, indigestion of the kidneys and bladder, and tranquilizes and strengthens the nervous system.

Strong Language.

J. B. Langhman, ex-mayor of North Des Moines, Iowa, said recently: "I have just recovered from a severe attack of la-grippe. I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm to my breast. These remedies were just the thing in my case. My child had croup some years ago, and we used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with perfect success, since then we have never been without it. I had a cousin who was a printer and was employed in a job office in this city, where they were printing circulars for Chamberlain. He had a severe cold and a terrible cough, and while setting up the copy he made up his mind to buy a bottle. It cured his cough and that was the first time I ever knew anything of Chamberlain's remedies. I have been strongly in their favor ever since. My own experience and that of my family convince me that these remedies are the best in the world. That may be strong language, but that is what I think." For sale by Shoemaker & Co.

NEVADA STATE UNIVERSITY.

Second Annual Commencement Exercises.

The above exercises, given yesterday at McKisick's Opera House, marked another interesting event in the history of the Nevada State University, which can be accepted as additional proof of the excellent work being done in that institution. Two classes, comprising twenty-two of Nevada's brightest native sons and daughters, graduated with honors from the Business and Normal Departments, receiving the final reward of their labors in diplomas that herald their success and enable them to begin the battle of life with advantages far superior to many of the preceding generation. The advantages of education and our increasing facilities are fully appreciated by our people, and the interest displayed by the young men and women of our State, and their eagerness to seize these advantages, are commendable and augur bright promise for the future.

The exercises began promptly at 2 o'clock. Long before that hour the Opera House was filled from the orchestra rail to the topmost seat in the gallery, with not even standing room in the aisles and lobby, with an appreciative audience in holiday attire. The stage setting of a woodland scene was beautified by an abundance of flowers packed in masses around the footlights and every available space.

On the left was a piano for the use of the soloists, and hanging in the background was the beautiful banner of the Business Department, on cloth of the class color—Nile green—with the class motto, "Mind knows no master but will," in letters of gold, bordered with heavy gold bullion fringe. About forty chairs on the stage seated the graduating classes and the Faculty.

THE PROGRAM.

Promptly on time President Jones announced briefly the overture by Fredrick's orchestra, which fairly captivated the audience and placed them in a contented mood for the long program that followed. First came the graduates of the Business Department, each one following promptly after the other without halt or delay, so that the ten essays and selections were given quickly without tiring the audience.

The first essay, "Heroes in Real Life," by George Bates, was pronounced in an earnest manner.

The next, "Industry Leads to Success," by Estella B. Ede, was marked by original thoughts, and given with a self-possession that was engaging.

The piano solo, "La Traviata," by Jennie C. Lachman, won marked applause and appreciation.

The next, an essay entitled, "After Graduation—What?" by Nellie G. Little, was given in a clear and positive tone, and marked with appropriate questions that won merited applause.

Then followed Charles Magill with an essay entitled, "Youth, Life's Supreme Opportunity," that evinced careful study of the subject and deep appreciation for the text.

After this came Franklin J. Powers in an essay entitled, "This Wonderful Age," pronounced in an earnest and resolute tone that won applause.

Then followed an instrumental trio by Professor Haymanson (piano) and E. Barlow and H. Fredrick (violins) that charmed the audience. It was at this point that President Jones won the gratitude of the audience by asking them to rise and stand during the music.

Then followed Clara E. Richardson with an essay on "Loss and Gain," pronounced with charming grace of manner, beautiful clear tone and appropriate gesture that reflected much on the young lady's credit.

After this came Thomas E. Robb with an oration entitled, "Energy, and What It Will Accomplish," showing the deep thought and originality that indicate a student of earnest purpose and bright prospects.

Then followed Helen M. Shelby with an essay entitled, "Trial Balance," appropriately dedicated to the Business Department, and given in a charming manner of self-possession.

After this followed Crissie Andrews in a vocal solo, accompanied by Professor Haymanson on the piano. It was a farewell class song, and sung in a manner to entitle that lady to the credit of being among our best vocalists. At its close, and without delay, came the exercises of the NORMAL DEPARTMENT.

The young lady graduates of this department did credit to their teachings, and with promptness, precision and graceful gesture that marked the Delaware school, they followed each other in five-minute essays, sparkling with bright thoughts of the Kindergarten, theory and practice of teaching and methods of education. In the order following came the graduates with the essays named:

"The Spirit of Pestalozzi" by Blanche Atherton.

"Old School Customs" by Mary Clow.

"Our National Mottoes" by Frances Frey.

Selection by the orchestra.

"The Poplar Bad Boy" by Helena Joy.

"The New Education" by Persia Lemmon.

"Juvenile Literature" by Adeline Morton.

School Song by Lottie Shaker, accompanied by Jennie C. Lachman, pianist.

"The Child of Fiction" by Jennie McFarlin.

"The Young Teacher" by Annie Olcovich.

"Post Graduate Education" by Hattie Rhodes.

At a concertual selection here intervened, which the audience enjoyed standing.

"The Child of the Public Press" by Elizabeth Savage.

At this point Prof. Haymanson gave a vocal solo that won the audience.

"The Child Actor" by Mary Snow. It is needless to say that all the above essays were characterized by a marked degree of excellence that reflected credit upon each and received due recognition from an appreciative audience.

After music by the orchestra came the presentation of diplomas by President Jones, who, in brief and pointed words, addressed the two classes and gave to each graduate the reward of merit. In doing this he expressed his regrets at the absence of one of the expected graduates from the Normal Department, Miss Kittie Linn, who by sickness was compelled to leave the class during the last month and thus lost the coveted honors of graduation, which she was showing herself worthily entitled to, as she was among the highest in the class. This closed the exercises, and while the orchestra played the audience departed, every one pleased with the result, and each one saying to himself his favorite:

"She's the flower of the college; I care not, Sir Professor, who you say she knows; She is educated—bless her."

LAKE TAHOE FLEET.

Arrival of E. J. Baldwin's New Iron Steamer.

The Truckee Republican of the 11th inst. says: The new iron steamer Tallac, owned by E. J. Baldwin, arrived here yesterday, and is now on the sidetrack near Marzen's slaughter house. The vessel is sixty-five feet long, has a breadth of beam of over eight feet, and is built for speed. Mr. Spooner, the logging man, has the contract of hauling it to Lake Tahoe. He hauled the Emerald to the Lake three years ago, and this steamer is about the same size. There will be active competition for the lake travel this summer, the contest being between Captain Todman's new steamers and the new outfit. No doubt there will be several speed contests. The lake is now pretty well supplied with steam craft, so far as numbers are concerned. The list comprises several boats, viz.: Tod Goodwin, Mamie, one not named, Tallac, Emerald, Meteor, and Niagara. The last three are employed by the mills.

EMINENT AND SUCCESSFUL.

Natural Talents Combined With Energy.

Perhaps no one individual who ever came to Nevada exerted a stronger and wider influence in the same length of time than has Miss Kate N. T. Topper, who took last night's train for new scenes and a new home. During her brief term of service as Professor in charge of the Normal School, this State she has trained about fifty teachers in the best

MODERN METHODS.

Of education and thus, although she may have gone, her good influence will be felt for no one can tell how many generations to come. It is a grand thing to be a teacher of teachers, and the measure of usefulness attained by one who directs the thoughts and efforts of a long line of growing minds, bringing them light in any school, cannot be estimated in this world. Nature and training have combined to make Miss Tupper eminent in this line of work, and many busy years has she devoted to it. A native of Iowa and a graduate of her University, she escaped the cramping influences of an Eastern training and began very early to teach in her native State, and afterwards in Dakota, Colorado and Oregon.
